THE MISSIONARY TASK

In order to carry out the missionary task, we must have access to people who need to hear the gospel.

As missionaries seek to enter an area, we focus on research, learning the local language, and seek to gain access.

Researching Lostness

We need to know who needs access to the gospel, who the unreached people groups of the earth are, and where unreached peoples and places are located.

Gaining Access

In order to gain access to people, various access strategies that are a good fit for the culture may be used to establish a presence among those who need to hear the gospel.

Learning Local Language(s)

Missionaries must learn the language(s) and culture(s) of the people they are trying to reach, which requires a serious investment of time and energy.
